Welcome to London

We are extremely proud that this is AEL's 30th year in existence and so we are using our Annual General Meeting (AGM) to hold a Birthday Party. We do hope that you will be able to join us for such a special occasion. We also hope that you will enjoy the weekend that we have planned for you at some of the special venues across London that we have been lucky enough to be able to source.

We would like to thank our friends at member firms based in London, Arthur Cox, Charles Russell Speechlys, Gomez Acebo & Pombo, Noerr and Veale Wasbrough Vizards who have all contributed to the event, which promises to be very special.

A brief outline of the programme for the AGM is set out below.

On behalf of myself and the rest of your Executive Committee we look forward to welcoming you to London on the 20th September.

Jeff Gillbanks
Secretary General

Hotel Information

The Courthouse Hotel, Shoreditch (<https://shoreditch.courthouse-hotel.com>)

The Courthouse Hotel Shoreditch is located within the midst of London's artistic and creative epicenter. Delivering each guest with a personalised and tailored experience encompassing the rich historical significance of the building, whilst celebrating and supporting the eclectic talent that thrives within the area.

Set within a Grade II Baroque building which was once the Old Street Magistrates Court and Police Station, the listed building hosted some high-profile cases such as London's notorious Kray Twins. As well as holding and sentencing well known criminals, the police station also held Eric Arthur Blair, author of "1984" and Animal Farm better known as George Orwell. The author's arrest was for being "drunk and incapable" in the East End of London while posing as a fish porter named Edward Burton. Orwell's unpublished 1932 essay Clink describes a colourful 48 hours in custody in December 1931 after drinking "four or five pints" and most of a bottle of whisky. His intention was to be arrested, "in order to get a taste of prison and to bring himself closer to the tramps and small-time villains with whom he mingled",.

The hotel features 86 guest rooms and 42 suites. Space and individual character are the hallmarks to each of the 5-star guestrooms, individually designed with stylish furnishing to provide exceptional standards of comfort. Boasting a contemporary design after undergoing a recent multi-million pound conversion of historical building, and newly built extension, the suites and rooms on offer are 'one of a kind'.

With the conservation project due to be completed at the end of September, guests will get within touching distance of the painted ceiling in all its glory at the special observation deck, and discover the painting's mysteries unveiled for the first time in half a century.
